QUALITY FUEL PERFORMANCE

Today's Modern Gasoline Engines

Many new engines are equipped with Gasoline Direct Injection (GDI) systems; this technology moves the placement of the fuel injectors from the intake port to the combustion chamber. This adjustment provides vehicle manufacturers with the ability to achieve greater overall performance and fuel economy. It must be noted, however, that this modification places the injectors in the harshest of settings. The increased temperatures and pressures in the combustion chamber create an environment ripe for deposit formation.

Fuel system cleanliness has always been important: a clean fuel system supports your vehicle's health, reduces emissions, and assists in its operation at factory-designated performance and fuel-economy specifications. This becomes increasingly critical for engines that use direct-injection technology. By virtue of design, these systems will not operate at peak performance if excessive combustion by-products compromise them.

Top Tier Gasoline

Myth: All gasoline is created equal.

Fact: All gasoline sold in Canada meets minimum government standards.

Top Tier gasolines are the premium standard, backed by a consortium of automakers who recognize that minimum governmental standards do not go far enough to ensure protection and performance optimization. To be labelled Top Tier, a gasoline's componentry must pass rigorous tests to guarantee consumers a premium level of protection.

Tempo Gasoline

We enhance all grades of Tempo gasoline with an aggressive detergency package certified as Top Tier that protects both modern and legacy motors. Our proprietary formulation will not only aid in deposit removal, but also will restore fuel mileage and engine performance, all compromised by deposit formations via the use of lower-quality gasoline.

Continued Evolution

Regulatory pressures and consumer demands are challenging automakers and fuel refiners to provide options that reduce emissions, improve fuel economy and maintain performance levels. Regardless of these changes, you can be confident that Tempo gasoline will always be ENGINEERED TO MOVE YOU®.
